Strength and Beauty – It's In Your Smile

THE MODERN MIRACLE OF DENTAL IMPLANTS

Are you missing one or more teeth? Studies show that missing teeth can not only ruin your confidence, they can damage your social and professional life too! In short, missing teeth can damage so much more than your health – they affect your entire life!

Why not get your life back with dental implants?

What can implants do for me?

Dental implants not only replace your missing teeth, they replace your roots as well, for the strength, stability, and bone stimulation nature intended. That means you can:

- Throw away the gooey adhesive
- Eat whatever you like
- Brush and floss as usual
- Never remove your dentures for soaking

They even help you recapture your youthful appearance by preventing bone loss and offering a natural look so you feel much more vital and sexy! In fact, the improved hygiene and strength dental implants offer will save you a lot of expense over time – both in enjoyment of life and in cumulative, dental expenses.

Why was I told I can't have implants?

Probably because you have already experienced bone loss. If you've been told you can't have implants, Dr. Nerestant's bone-augmentation services might be just the thing. This technique can rebuild and replace lost bone, enabling Dr. Nerestant to place the implants you thought you would never have. Dr. Nerestant's technique could save your smile!

"There are plenty of dentists who do implants, but Dr. Nerestant is the only one I wanted to go to. Now I have had every tooth replaced with an implant and I love it. Implants look more natural, they feel natural, and I can eat whatever I want. I've even had an attitude shift and feel more outgoing. It's hard to explain but it is really great. I'd recommend this to anyone. You won't be disappointed." – LAMAR

Why should I choose dental implants?

✔ Be Healthier ✔ Eat Well Again ✔ Look Younger

Dental implants can actually free you from the constant threat of periodontal disease that hangs over the heads of all denture wearers and allow you to end the use of unhealthy denture adhesive. Because implants stimulate the jawbone, they stop bone loss and movement of your remaining teeth, decreasing your risk for TMJ disorder, jaw pain and popping, headaches, and even migraines. Most people even enjoy more restful sleep once they replace their dentures. And don't forget, implants allow you to eat a proper diet which is vital for your health.

Eating is associated with so many of life's little pleasures: Mealtimes are when families and friends come together to communicate, enjoy each other, and celebrate life. Sadly, people who wear dentures often avoid social situations where eating and talking are involved because of embarrassment.

Missing teeth and dentures can also decrease the pleasure and flavor of food and make certain foods impossible to eat. Dentures simply cannot apply the amount of force needed for effective chewing. In addition, the plastic over the roof of your mouth from a traditional denture affects the taste and mouthfeel of your food.

Missing teeth can make you look decades older because of the lack of teeth and bone to support your facial structure. The trouble is that if the bone which surrounds your teeth is not stimulated from within, your body begins to dissolve, or resorb it. Dentures become loose, wrinkles deepen, the face takes on a permanent frown, jowls form, and the lower part of your face looks collapsed or fallen in.

Dental implants immediately stop, and often reverse, this process. In fact, many patients look 10-15 years younger with implants than they did with dentures.
